Book mark activity

Bookmark making activity was a creative and engaging endeavor in the school library where students design and craft their own bookmarks.

The activity encouraged students to explore their artistic skills and express their individuality through bookmark designs. They can use various art supplies like colored paper, markers, stickers, and even incorporated themes related to books and reading.

The purpose of bookmark making was twofold: it helped students create personalized tools for their reading adventures, and it fostered a sense of ownership and pride in their reading materials.

These homemade bookmarks served as reminders of the joy of reading and can be used to mark pages in books, adding a personal touch to the reading experience.

Book cover activity

Book cover making activity in the school library involved students creating custom book covers for their favorite books or for books they have read.

The activity included design elements such as illustrations, title and author information, and creative artwork that reflected the book's content or themes.

The purpose of book cover making was to encourage students to think critically about the visual representation of a book and to engage with its content on a deeper level. It also allowed them to express their interpretation of the story.

Book mark activity

- A bookmark is a thin marking tool, commonly made of card, leather, or fabric, used to keep track of a reader's progress in a book and allow the reader to easily return to where the previous reading session ended.

Book cover

- A book cover design should not only give the student an idea of the content and mood of the book but should also be eye-catching to encourage students browsing in the library (like customers in a bookstore) to pick up a book they may not be familiar with. Learn how a Cover Contest helped low performing readers.
- Designing book covers, posters and bookmarks is a multi-faceted learning experience for students. The lessons encompass creative expression, attention to detail, audience awareness, conceptual thinking, an iterative process, collaboration, time management, empathy, digital literacy, and a sense of accomplishment. These skills not only enrich students' artistic abilities but also equip them with valuable life skills that extend beyond the realm of design.
